"Old Books That Talk"

Eli Genauer was born and raised in Seattle, Washington where his family has resided for over 100 years. He attended Yeshiva College and studied at Yeshiva Chofetz Chaim both in Israel and in Queens. He has been a businessman and community volunteer in Seattle for almost four decades. He serves at present as a national Vice President of the Orthodox Union, an organization which is most dear to him. He is a collector of old Seforim and has written and lectured extensively on his collection. His articles have been featured online, in the journal Hakirah and in Jewish Action. He presented some of his research on early printed editions of the Talmud at the 16th World Congress of Jewish Studies in Jerusalem.

He has been married to his wife Eva for 43 delightful years. They have together three married children and nine grandchildren.
